

Financial Aid Vocab Cheat Sheet Financial aid has a language all its own – one with lots of acronyms and industry-specific terms that can sound scary. This glossary will take some of the mystery out of these terms and help you make the best decisions about your awards.

Student Aid Index (SAI): An eligibility index number that a college's financial aid office uses to determine how much federal and state student aid the student would receive if the student attended the school. This number results from the information that the student provides in their FAFSA® form.

Cost of Attendance (COA): An estimate of how much it costs to attend a college. The COA includes the price of tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies and other expenses associated with attending that school.

Financial need: The difference between Student Aid Index (SAI) and a college's Cost of Attendance (COA).

Net price: How much it will cost you to attend a college for one year after your scholarships and grants, loans and work-study subtracted from the COA.

Student Aid Report (SAR): This report shows you what data is on your FAFSA, some information about the aid for which you're eligible and your Student Aid Index (SAI).

Subsidized loan: A need-based loan on which you don't pay interest while you're in school.

Unsubsidized loan: A loan for which you don't have to demonstrate financial need, but you're responsible for the interest.

Scholarship/grant: A monetary gift that doesn't have to be repaid. It can be one-time or renewable, and based on grades, talents or other criteria.

Work-study: A part-time job for students with financial need.

You can contact your school's financial aid office at any time if you need some help understanding terms like these. They'll be happy to help you translate them! For more common terms you'll see throughout the financial aid process, check out this glossary from the Department of Education.
